

Air Layering

It's not as difficult as you might think!

Join us at the Kohala Village HUB Barn
In Hawi on Tuesday February 16th
From 6:00-9:00 pm

It's a new year and HFUU Kohala is as committed as ever to bringing you excellent no-cost educational events along with our monthly potluck gatherings. This year we are adding a surplus fruit, plant and seed exchange table.

We meet on the second Tuesday of every month at the HUB Barn from 6 to 9 pm. Dinner is provided by all of you and starts at 6:00 sharp. All our gatherings are zero waste events so please bring your own plate and eating utensils. Local food is encouraged, as are healthy homemade choices. A small label describing your dish is also very helpful for those with dietary restrictions.

Our expert this month is Brian Lievens. He has a degree in landscape nursery technology and over 40 years of agricultural experience.

Brian is formerly a crop development explorer and researcher as well as a banana collector maintaining a collection of 40 varieties. He is currently president of West Hawaii Tropical Fruit Growers, and an active nurseryman.

His presentation on the 16th will focus on air layering techniques for propagating fruit trees.
